

Quarry Pavers

Seneca Tiles Quarry Pavers are made one at a time, featuring crisp corners and edges and minor surface and color variations. These unique characteristics set Seneca Quarry Pavers apart from the mechanical appearance of mass-produced tiles. Dense and durable tiles are formed from the finest shale and fire clays.

GLAZED Highlighted by naturally occurring ironspots, Glazed Quarry Pavers have a beautiful shaded range within each color.

UNGLAZED UNFLASHED Unglazed Unflashed Quarry Pavers are the most uniform group of unglazed tiles and are characterized by solid colors ranging from light dark.

UNGLAZED FLASHED ONLY Unique, natural brick-like shaded tiles – warm, rich, variegations from the center of each tile, outward, form a darker frame, sometimes referred to as a “heart”.

UNGLAZED IRONSPOT In Ironspot tiles, naturally occurring iron in the clay comes to the surface during flashing and form distinctive flecks which creates a beautiful range of textures.

UNGLAZED FLASHED BLEND Flashed Blend is the combination of Ironspot and Flashed Only tiles. Combining the two brings together the full range of tiles produced by a long, slow, firing and flashing process unique to beehive kilns. After firing, the tile is separated by hand depending on visual characteristics, into either Flashed Only or Ironspot ranges. Flashed Only and Ironspot are sold separately ~ or customers may order Flashed Blend which is the combination of both Ironspot AND Flashed Only.
